

Aim to New Education of Natural History

Yoshiyuki Koide[1]

The goal of this study is systematization of natural history education. At first, I build up a working hypothesis and perform case studies by the hypothesis. Finally, I would construct a theory of natural history education. The target persons of the case studies are generation who could receive no school education at present. This study is "everyone, everytime, everywhere, and always". I aim to the solution of this study by volunteer organization. The natural history education should be constructed on the basis of real specimens, and be introduced in subject of natural history.
