

Paleomagnetic study of volcanic and sedimentary rocks from Broken Hill, Australia

Eiichi Kikawa [1], Hideo Sakai [2], Megumi Nakaoki [3], Teruo Watanabe [4]

[1] Deep Sea Res. Dept., JAMSTEC, [2] Earth Sci., Toyama Univ., [3] Environmental Info. Ed, Toyama Univ, [4] Earth and Planetary Sci., Hokkaido Univ.

Paleomagnetic results of volcanic and sedimentary rocks from Broken Hill area, Australia indicated that this area was probably affected by the Tasman orogenic activity (200 Ma), resulting in re-acquisition of the magnetic remanence.