

Modeling process of fractured rock mass for analyzing pollutant migration around disposal site

Kunio Watanabe[1]

[1] Environmental System, Saitama Univ

<http://gris.saitama-u.ac.jp/>

Proper modeling of fractured rock mass is indispensable for analyzing groundwater flow and pollutant migration around a disposal site. A new modeling process is proposed in this paper. This process is based on the Don-Chan model for calculating ground water flow and nuclide migration.