

Dissolution of quartz around indented regions

toshiaki masuda[1], Yayoi Matsuo[2], Yuko Hara[1], Hideaki Ikei[3]

[1] Inst. Geosci., Shizuoka Univ., [2] Geosciences Aci., Shizuoka Univ, [3] Inst. Geosciences, Shizuoka Univ.

Indented quartz by the Vickers indentation test was etched with a 1N HF solution. The manner how it was etched was succeedingly observed with an Atomic Force Microscope.

Nothing seems to happen on the flat unindented surfaces, while the indented surfaces were dissolved progressively with time.

Indented quartz by the Vickers indentation test was etched with a 1N HF solution. The manner how it was etched was succeedingly observed with an Atomic Force Microscope.

Nothing seems to happen on the flat unindented surfaces, while the indented surfaces were dissolved progressively with time.