

A study of earth science education at universities : II

Noriko Sugi[1]

[1] Kyoritsu Women's Univ.

For the purpose of finding an ideal state of earth science education at universities, how female students understand earth/earth science has been investigated through reports and questionnaires for students in my class. It may be given as a conclusion that it is important to try to draw forth the independency of students.