

Study on the intensity and delay time distributions of Omega signals in the plasma sphere

Nao Oosumi[1]; Yoshitaka Goto[1]; Yoshiya Kasahara[1]

[1] Kanazawa Univ.

In the present paper, we introduce a new computational technique to detect the rise times of Omega signals automatically, which are observed by VLF instruments onboard the Akebono satellite. Using this technique, we estimated the spatial distributions of the signal intensity and the propagation delay time of Omega signals in the plasmasphere statistically.