

Temporal trace of geomagnetic conjugate point observed by auroras

Natsuo Sato[1]; Akira Kadokura[1]; Yusuke Ebihara[1]; Hiroki Deguchi[2]; Thorsteinn Saemundsson,[3]

[1] NIPR; [2] Earth and Planetary Sci, Kyushu Univ; [3] University of Iceland

Extremely similar conjugate auroras were observed on 26 September 2003 at Syowa-Iceland conjugate-pair stations. Using the aurora data we could identify a temporal variation of geomagnetic conjugate point. This observational result will be discussed with a model magnetosphere.