

An introduction to field work in the higher education

Satoshi Kanisawa[1]

[1] none

In this report, I will present my experience of a lecture An introduction to field work for undergraduate students at Tohoku University. Majority of them have no experience and attendance of earth sciences and field work.

However, they have a strong desire to learn the nature or environment of them. In the first stage of my lecture, I guided the nature around the campus of Tohoku University and lectured the knowledge of the nature.

In the first stage of my lecture, I guided the nature around the campus of Tohoku University and lectured the knowledge of the nature.

In the following stage, all members presented the results of their themes studied.

At that time, it is very important to make a circumstance that all members can talk freely and share equally with the mutual debates among the all students and the lecturer.