

SAR Measurements of Crustal Deformation

Mikio Tobita[1]; Masanobu Shimada[2]; Midori Fujiwara[1]; Tomomi Amagai[1]; Kozin Wada[1]; Satoshi Fujiwara[1]; Shigeru Matsuzaka[1]; Hiroshi Munekane[1]; Hiroshi Yurai[1]; Makoto Murakami[3]

[1] GSI; [2] EORC, JAXA; [3] Geography and Geodynamics Research Center, The GSI

We will discuss the conditions for SAR interferometry and fusion between SAR and GPS. Phase slope is a key factor of coherence of interferograms. FBS mode of PALSAR has the great capability of measuring the high gradient of displacements. An example of fusion between ALOS and GEONET will be presented.