

Petrological investigations on a megamullion around the Kairei hydrothermal field of the Central Indian Ridge

Kaori Hara[1]; Hidenori Kumagai[2]; Kyoko Okino[3]; Tomoaki Morishita[4]; Takashi Sawaguchi[5]; Masato Joshima[6]; Kentaro Nakamura[7]; Natsuki Neo[8]; Takazo Shibuya[9]; Taichi Sato[3]; Satoshi Okada[10]; Morifumi Takaesu[11]; Shoji Arai[12]

[1] Earthscience, Kanazawa Univ.; [2] JAMSTEC; [3] ORI; [4] Earth Science, Kanazawa Univ.; [5] Shohoku College; [6] IGG,GSJ,AIST; [7] IFREE, JAMSTEC; [8] Fac. Sci., Niigata Univ.; [9] Earth and Planetary Sci., T.I.Tech.; [10] NME Co.; [11] Marine Science Dept., NME.; [12] Dept. Earth Sci., Kanazawa Univ.

We report petrological characteristics of rock samples collected from a megamullion at the west of the Kairei hydrothermal field of the Central Indian Ridge.