

J171-P001

Room: Poster Session Hall

Time: May 20

The importance of mapping and spatial representation in geoscience

Yohta Kumaki[1]

[1] GSI

In geoscience, spatial structure of the object are important subjects and their representation is necessary. In the session J171 Mapping and spatial representation in geoscience, preparation, visualization and analysis methods of spatial data and their application to science and human society are discussed, aiming at the development of mapping and other spatial representation methods.