

L214-003

Room: 303

Time: May 29 9:30-9:45

Geochemical monitoring of reservoir fluids in CO₂ injection tests at the Ogachi HDR site

Akira Ueda[1]; Yoshihiro Nakatsuka[2]; Makoto Kunieda[3]; Yoshihiro Kuroda[4]; Tatsuya Yajima[5]; Hisao Satoh[6]; Akiko Ozawa[7]; Hiroshi Wakahama[8]; Saeko Mito[8]; yoshikazu kaji[9]; Hideshi Kaieda[10]

[1] Civil and Natural Resources, Kyoto Univ; [2] Civ.Earth Res. Eng., Kyoto Univ.; [3] Global Eng., Kyoto Univ.; [4] Engineering Geology, Kyoto Univ; [5] Mitsubishi Materials co.; [6] Mitsubishi Materials Co.; [7] mrc; [8] RITE; [9] Chuo-kaihatsu; [10] CRIEPI

CO₂ dissolved water (1% CO₂) was injected into the Ogachi HDR and the reservoir fluids were geochemically monitored. The CO₂ concentrations decreased with time and a half of the injected CO₂ might be deposited as carbonate such as calcite.