

S144-002

Room: 302

Time: May 28 15:55-16:15

Temporal seismic observations in inland regions

Yoshihisa Iio[1]

[1] DPRI, Kyoto Univ.

Recently, temporal seismic observations are mainly conducted to record aftershock data of large earthquakes. A lot of important results are obtained by these temporal observations, however, the amount and quality of phase data from these observations are not significantly developed for these twenty years. It is necessary to obtain higher sampling data from denser observation networks.