In Hokkaido, there are many localities in which part of the history of the landscape is well documented. The geosites examination group, Hokkaido branch of Geological Society of Japan has started the list-up and describing sites of geological interest since March, 2008. The purpose of list-up of geosites is to promote the conservation of Hokkaido's rich heritage of landscape, rock, fossil and mineral sites. And the aim is to inform the wider public including local populace for the importance of this patrimony, and of geological and geomorphological values. Please read the necessary information on:
