The authors had a video conversation class from the JOIDES Resolution for Japanese high school students of two high schools, Nagasaki Prefectural Sasebo-nishi High School and Kan'onji-dai'ichi High School, Kagawa prefecture. Lecturers of the class are a researcher on the vessel and some foreign teachers from US, France, and Portugal. The students who attended the class had increased interest in core samples of pillow lava from Nankai Trough.
