'Fieldnet' is the network for the academic fieldworkers who often go to various places worldwide for their research. We can share a lot of useful information about field work and technicalities involved, for example about the research permit, how to collect the old data during colonial era, the counterpart and co-researchers in the particular place, and resource persons etc. We can discuss about common topics from a view point of multi-disciplined scholars, so that we may get new ideas and organize new academic research group and new research field to solve academic and social problems. We aim to link together online and offline to activate field science.
