

Discussion for more effective data sharing

Atsushi Higuchi^{1*}

¹Center for Environmental Remote Sensing (CEReS), Chiba University

For better understanding of the Earth environments, maximal utilization of data is essential. However only limited (well documented) datasets are used for analysis. In this presentation, I will show the standing points for more effective data sharing, to take into account for the point of views in "top-down" and "bottom up". I hope that such standing points are useful for the discussion in this session.

Keywords: data sharing, bottom up, top down